DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Bank et al (US 5,449,802) in view of Kleyer et al(US 5,359,111).

The instant claimed invention is directed to a hydrosilylation reaction for making compounds of formula 3 or 4¹ by reacting a compound of formula 1 and formula 2² in the presence of a catalyst and an ether compound having no aliphatic triple bond.

Bank et al disclose a hydrosilylation reaction that encompasses the reactants of the instant claim³. The reaction is done with compounds called accelerators. Bank discloses the use of acetylenic ethers as accelerators. The examiner recognizes that this accelerator is expressly excluded from the instant claims.

Kleyer et al disclose a hydrosilylation reaction that encompasses the reactants of the instant claim⁴. Kleyer discloses a method of controlling the reaction by using an oxygen containing gas. Kleyer states that suitable oxygen containing gases include ethers such the allyl and vinyl ethers⁵. The prior art fails to explicitly disclose using the claimed ethers.

³ See columns 1-4 for example.

⁴ See columns 1-5.

Thus the prior art generally teaches the instant claimed hydrosilylation reaction in the presence of ethers. It would have been obvious at the time that applicant's invention was made to have done a hydrosilylation reaction in the presence of ethers with a reasonable expectation of success. Although Kleyer and Bank do not explicitly disclose all the claimed ethers they would be prima facie obvious because a skilled artisan would reasonably expect other oxygen containing gases to be useful for controlling a hydrosilylation reaction. Moreover, a skilled artisan would be motivated to use other ethers based on such factors as availability and cost.

Applicant showing of unexpected results has carefully been considered but found to be unpersuasive. The showing demonstrates superior results when an ether compound is compared with no ether being used. However, the closest prior art uses acetylenic ethers. Applicant has not demonstrated superior results compared to this compound. Also, the prior art suggest the use of allyl and vinyl ethers. No comparison to these ethers has been demonstrated by applicant.
